Dear Mr Dhingra,

I am writing to congratulate you on your election to Associateship of the Institute.

The ACIB is - rightly - a difficult qualification to obtain, and I am sure that you will use the designatory letters to let people know about your achievement. If you want further honours remember that existing Associates, such as yourself, will be able to obtain a Masters degree after a short course of further study or the BSc(Hons) from Manchester University by passing any four of the Associateship papers, including ones you have sat before.

You may also like to know that we have launched a Continuous Professional Development Scheme, details of which are enclosed.

Some people, when they have finished the ACIB, ask "what can the Institute do for me now?". The answer is quite a lot, but I also feel that senior members, both Fellows and Associates, ought to be thinking of what they should be doing for their junior colleagues - the history of our first hundred years was, after all, called "Debtors to their Profession". There are many ways of doing this - through training and teaching, local centre work, counselling young members about the qualifications, and so on. The important thing to recognise is that by giving something back you stand to benefit more yourself.

We are determined to continue to provide you with support for your professionalism - and I very much hope you will make full use of your Institute.

Yours sincerely,

GAVIN SHREEVE
